“ Hi my name is Kayla and I am a local bible teacher. I am so sorry for the loss of your loved one. There is a very comforting scripture at Isaiah 25:8. It says that soon Jehovah will swallow up death forever and that he will wipe away all of the tears. So we can all look forward to a time when death will be no more. I hope that this scripture can bring some true comfort during these difficult times.

“ James and family, I know that you've been battling Loretta's illness for years. It may seem as though you've lost, but I truly believe that she's won the ultimate prize. She's home with the Lord now. No more pain and suffering for her. Although you may still feel pain because of your loss, find comfort in her victory. Her going through all that she did is a tribute to the love she has for you all. She wanted to remain with you as long as she could. Find peace in knowing that she's looking over you, renewed in every way. She's experiencing the love that we all pray for. James, you've been her rock here on earth. You've been so strong though it all. You've both shared in this struggle and made sacrifices without a thought of yourselves. Your faith has kept you both strong through it all and it's your faith that has taken her home. Keep that faith James and know that the God is with you through it all. I will continue to keep you both in my prayers.
God Bless

“ My dearest Jimmy and family, I know how hard this is for each of you, and how much you will miss our dear Loretta. May you be comforted by knowing that this is just a stepping stone for her as she begins her forever-journey with the Lord. She is pain free now. She was a pray warrior, her faith remained strong in Christ even though she endured pain for several years. She hung in there as long as the Lord gave her breath. We can be comforted knowing that she will take her place in Heaven, and she would want all of us to serve and love the Lord so that at our appointed time we too can know for sure that Christ has prepared a place for us, just as he did for her. Loretta embraced each day with God's promises.

“ My deepest condolences to the Johnson-Cockrell family. May you find comfort in the beautiful words found at Revelation 21:3 & 4, where God promises us that He will soon eliminate all pain, suffering and death. While we wait for this promise to be fulfilled, may the fond memories of Macy comfort you and ease your pain.
