“Dearest Joe, I know you're with the Lord now. I know you're dancing up a storm. I know you're free of pain. And I know that my life is better because of you.

I miss our all night " Oh my gosh the sun is up!" conversations. I miss dancing with you like a bunch of crazies. I miss our "Seriously Crystel? Only you!" stories. I miss our jaw aching laughing to tears about the stupidest stuff. I miss our arguments about who would pay for lunch...25 years of meals together and I never won that argument. I miss our hilarious banter. I miss playing the color blind game. I'm still sorry you threw your blue shirt away because I told you it was purple. Man our pranks were serious. I miss your hugs. I just miss you.

Thank you for being there every time I needed a friend, for always being my greatest cheerleader, supporter, encourager, and shoulder to lean on. Thank you for making me belly laugh and letting me cry it out. Thank you for sharing your family and friends with me. Thank you for sharing you!

You are the most selfless, genuine, caring, compassionate, and giving person I've ever known. So selfless that I had to find a picture of you for this post and could only find one. One picture of you in all of your Facebook pictures. I wish we would have taken more.

25 years was not long enough to have you in my life. These words aren't enough words to say how remarkable you are, how grateful and blessed I am to have you in my life, or how broken my heart is.

There are no words to describe the loss and complete heart break I and everyone was fortunate enough to know you feel and how blessed heaven is to have an angel named Joseph Nail .

Until we act a fool together again. I can hear you now saying "Ooooh Lord!" I love you and will see you again my sweet sweet friend.

“ One of the kindest, humble, and most selfless person I have ever had the pleasure of knowing. He didn't have children but he raised me as his own for years. I am so sorry to hear such a good person is gone so soon, but I find a little peace in knowing that he is no longer in pain. Rest In Peace Joe.
